ENVIRONMENTAL LINKS TO BREAST CANCER

with Cheryl Osimo

Monday, November 5, 2012

1:00 - 2:00 pm

Main Library, 53 Main Street

About 1 in 8 women and 1 in 1,000 men in the U.S. will develop invasive breast cancer over the course of their lifetime. The upcoming empowering program with the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition and Silent Spring Institute presents the environmental and political issues surrounding the breast cancer epidemic.

Cheryl Osimo, Director of Events & Communication for the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition (MBCC) www.mbcc.org and Co-Founder & Outreach Coordinator for Silent Spring Institute (SSI) www.silentspring.org will discuss the imperative to prevent breast cancer before it starts. Only then can the corrosive legacy of breast cancer be changed for future generations.

Cheryl has been a devoted activist and advocate since 1991 when she was diagnosed with breast cancer at the age of 41.
